Just a Little Thing . . .

Your editor recently received a letter from a reader in which several reasons were set forth for adding a bit of identifying information to each page of the Journal of Rehabilitation of the Deaf. At first, our reaction was fundamentally negative. However, since there appeared to be some merit to the suggestion and recognizing that a unilateral decision for “no changes” might not be in the best interests of the Journal or its readers, the Editorial Advisory Board was asked to respond to the suggestions.

Nearly every one of the Board members responded. Not one suggested that we discount the suggestion. Rather, it was unanimously agreed that we should adopt the suggestion and institute the practice, assuming the additional expense were not too great. Costs were investigated and found to be reasonable. Hence, beginning with this issue, the initials of the Journal, the month, and year of the issue will now appear on each page.

The addition of this identifying information may be just a little thing, but arguments set forth in favor of including it suggest that it will be a service of great worth. So, go ahead, now, and take your JRD apart, make photocopies for your reference files and be secure in the knowledge that you will not have to remember to write the necessary information or be faced with the task, sometime in the future, of trying to track down the issue from which it came.

Our goal is to keep the JRD meaningful. We attempt to include articles which are relevant and field-oriented. We also wish to improve the JRD in ways which will make it a better tool.
